

Intention letter

Hello!

I am writing this letter of intent to express my desire to apply for an ad published on LinkedIn for the position of Data Analyst within your company. I am interested in the way of working in this department, I want to get involved in the long term in data analysis and management activities, and to develop my professional skills.

I benefit from a significant knowledge in this field, which I have accumulated during my college years, as well as from the Data Science (DataCamp & Enki) courses I have taken. I consider that the communication skills and technical knowledge (Microsoft Office; Programming - SQL, Python, R; Business Intelligence - Tableau, Looker, Mode) as well as the advanced level of knowledge of English, developed during the period I lived in the USA, by through the Work & Travel program, recommend me for a place on your team.

Documenting myself on the activities carried out by your company, I found with satisfaction that its profile and orientation fully correspond to my professional aspirations. Please consider my resume for this job. Also, to have a better vision of my skills, I have attached to this e-mail the certificates I have obtained so far, and I would also like to mention that I will continue my learning process with the help of the DataCamp platform.

I am at your disposal for the next stages of the recruitment process.

Thank you.
